The Routledge Handbook of Justice and Home Affairs Research

Edited by Ariadna Ripoll Servent, the University of Bamberg, Germany, and Florian Trauner

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

Justice and Home Affairs is one of the fastest expanding areas of research in European Studies. The European response to security concerns such as terrorism, organised crime networks, and drug trafficking as well as to the challenge of managing migration flows are salient topics of interest to an increasing number of scholars of all disciplines, the media and general public. This handbook takes stock of policy development and academic research in relation to justice and home affairs and analyses the field in an unprecedented thematic depth.

The book comprehensively investigates the field from the perspective of the three dimensions central to European integration: the sectoral (policies), the horizontal (states, regions) and the vertical (institutions, decision-making) dimensions. It also discusses the most important theoretical approaches used in this research area and provides the reader with a state of the art picture of the field.

20% Discount Available - enter the code FLR40 at checkout*

Hb: 978-1-138-18375-9 | £132.00

*Offer cannot be used in conjunction with any other offer or discount and only applies to books purchased directly via our website.

For more details, or to request a copy for review, please contact: Robyn Doyle, Author Marketing & Communications, Robyn.Doyle@tandf.co.uk

For more information visit: www.routledge.com/9781138183759
Table of Contents

PART I: Introduction

Chapter 1: Justice and home affairs research – introducing the state of the art and avenues for further research (Florian Trauner, Vrije Universiteit Brussel; Ariadna Ripoll Servent, University of Bamberg)

PART II: Theories of Justice and Home Affairs

Chapter 2: The governance of internal security – beyond functionalism and the finality of integration? (Raphael Bossong, Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik; Hendrik Hegemann, Osnabrück University)

Chapter 3: Securitization: turning an approach into a framework for research on EU justice and home affairs (Christian Kaunert, Vrije Universiteit Brussel; Ikrom Yakubov, University of Dundee)

Chapter 4: Public policy approaches and the study of European Union justice and home affairs (Mark Rhinard, Stockholm University)

PART III: Analyzing justice and home affairs policies (the sectoral dimension)

Chapter 5: Asylum and refugee protection: EU policies in crisis (Petra Bendel, University of Erlangen-Nürnberg; Ariadna Ripoll Servent, University of Bamberg)

Chapter 6: The irregular immigration policy conundrum: problematizing ‘effectiveness’ as a frame for EU criminalization and expulsion policies (Sergio Carrera, CEPS; Jennifer Allsopp, University of Oxford)

Chapter 7: Informalizing EU readmission policy (Jean-Pierre Cassarino, Institut de Recherche sur le Maghreb Contemporain, Tunis)

Chapter 8: Border management: the Schengen regime in times of turmoil (Ruben Zaiotti, Dalhousie University)

Chapter 9: EU visa policy: decision-making dynamics and effects on migratory processes (Mathias Czaika, Oxford University; Florian Trauner, Vrije Universiteit Brussel)

Chapter 10: EU labor immigration policy: from silence to salience (Georg Menz, Goldsmiths University of London)

Chapter 11: Organized crime: balancing national sensitivities with global necessities (Daniela Irrera, Università di Catania)

Chapter 12: Cyber crime as a fragmented policy field in the context of the area of freedom, security and justice (Helena Carrapico, University of Strathclyde; Benjamin Farrand, University of Warwick)
Chapter 13: EU counter-terrorism: glass half-full or half-empty (Oldrich Bures, Metropolitan University Prague)

Chapter 14: Data protection policies in EU justice and home affairs – a multilayered and yet unexplored territory for legal research (Paul de Hert and Vagelis Papakonstantinou, Vrije Universiteit Brussel)

Chapter 15: EU home affairs and technology: how to make sense of information and data processing (Julien Jeandesboz, Université libre de Bruxelles)

Chapter 16: EU criminal law: an expanding field for research, with some unchartered territories (Anne Weyembergh and Chloé Brière, Université libre de Bruxelles)

Chapter 17: Judicial cooperation in civil matters – coming of age? (Eva Storskrubb, Uppsala University; Anna Wallerman, University of Gothenburg)

Chapter 18: Family reunification and migrant integration policies in the EU: dynamics of inclusion and exclusion (Saskia Bonjour, University of Amsterdam)

PART IV: Justice and home affairs inside and outside Europe (the horizontal dimension)

Chapter 19: Europe's core member states: intended and unintended consequences of strong policy-shaping traditions (Andreas Ette, German Federal Institute for Population Research)

Chapter 20: Southern Europe: twenty-five years of immigration control on the waterfront (Claudia Finotelli, Complutense University of Madrid)

Chapter 21: Differentiated Integration and the Brexit-process in EU Justice and Home Affairs (Steve Peers, University of Essex)

Chapter 22: Central and Eastern Europe: the EU’s struggle for rule of law pre- and post-accession (Ramona Coman, Université libre de Bruxelles)

Chapter 23: The Western Balkans: decreasing EU external leverage meets increasing domestic reform needs (Florian Trauner, Vrije Universiteit Brussel; Zoran Nechev, ETH Zurich)

Chapter 24: Justice and home affairs in EU-Turkey relations: mutual interests but much distrust (Alexander Bürgin, Izmir University)

Chapter 25: The Eastern Partnership countries and Russia: a migration-driven cooperation agenda with the European Union (Oleg Korneev, Tomsk State University; Peter Van Elsuwege, Ghent University)

Chapter 26: The Southern Mediterranean: a testing ground and a litmus test for EU JHA policies and research (Sarah Wolff, Queen Mary University of London and Patryk Pawlak, EU Institute for Security Studies)
Chapter 27: Africa-EU relations on organized crime: between securitization and fragmentation (Judith Vorrath and Verena Zoppei, Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik)

Chapter 29: EU cooperation in justice and home affairs with Australia and Canada: new ties that bind? (Agnieszka Weinar, European University Institute)

Chapter 30: The EU and Latin America: a real security and development nexus or a superficial one? (Arantza Gómez Arana, Birmingham City University)

Chapter 31: The EU-ASEAN relationship: cooperation on non-traditional security threats between discourse and practice (Angela Pennisi di Floristella, Università di Catania)

PART V: EU institutions and decision-making dynamics (the vertical dimension)

Chapter 32: The European Parliament in justice and home affairs: becoming more realistic at the expense of human rights? (Ariadna Ripoll Servent, University of Bamberg)

Chapter 33: The European Court of Justice as a game changer: fiduciary obligations in the area of freedom, security and justice (Ester Herlin-Karnell, University of Amsterdam)

Chapter 34: The European Commission in justice and home affairs: pushing hard to be a motor of integration (Natascha Zaun, University of Oxford)

Chapter 35: The Council and European Council in EU justice and home affairs politics (Christof Roos, Vrije Universiteit Brussels)

Chapter 36: The role of national parliaments in the area of freedom, security and justice: high normative expectations, low empirical results (Angela Tacea, Science Po Paris)

Chapter 37: The EU’s agencies: ever more important for the governance of the area of freedom, security and justice (Juan Santos Vara, University of Salamanca)

Chapter 38: NGOs go to Brussels: challenges and opportunities for research and practice in AFSJ (Emek M. Uçarer, Bucknell University)

Chapter 39: International organizations and the Area of Freedom, Security and Justice (Claudio Matera, University of Twente)