Vertiefungsseminar (BA): Internationale und europäische Politik

New challenges to security and liberty in the European Union

How can human rights and civil liberties be reconciled with tighter borders and the exclusion of migrants? This course deals with the growing tension between the liberal ideals of most European countries and the increasing emphasis on security and exclusion. It looks at national and EU political developments in order to understand the shifting nature of internal security policies. The course aims to critically challenge our understandings of borders, asylum or migration and how they fit into the classical image of a sovereign state. Can security and liberty be reconciled or are they two faces of the same coin? Therefore it deals with key issues of state-making: sovereignty, borders, citizenship, inclusion and exclusion, and how these debates are uploaded to the European level. The variety of questions and levels of analysis that are raised when investigating these issues requires a careful consideration of the best theoretical and methodological approaches to find accurate answers. This course aims to help students find solutions to these questions and engage in a more critical appraisal of EU internal security policies.
