

Bamberg Graduate Schools

Bamberg Graduate Schools are structured PhD programs in which doctoral students dealing with similar topics are supervised by a group of professors.

An integral part of these programs is the offer of obtaining additional qualifications, which purposefully promote subject-specific and interdisciplinary skills (key qualifications) in their doctoral candidates. The supervisors are happy to help their doctoral students with any questions with regard to PhD funding and options for academic careers, in cooperation with the Trimberg Research Academy (TRAc).

www.uni-bamberg.de/trac

For whom is BaGraMS intended?

BaGraMS is intended for graduates who have completed their degree (M.A., Magister, Diplom, Staatsexamen) in an area within the spectrum of subjects of BaGraMS and wish to do their PhD in one or more subjects within the framework of a structured program. Interdisciplinary projects are encouraged but not obligatory.

Contact

Otto-Friedrich-Universität Bamberg
Bamberger Graduiertenschule für
Mittelalterstudien
Zentrum für Mittelalterstudien
96045 Bamberg

Contact person
Prof. Dr. Ingrid Bennewitz (spokesperson) zemas@uni-bamberg.de

Informations
<http://www.uni-bamberg.de/bagrams>

Pictures: Gerald Raab, Sb Bamberg; Stephan Albrecht; publish!

Universität Bamberg

Bamberg Graduate School for Medieval Studies
(BaGraMS)

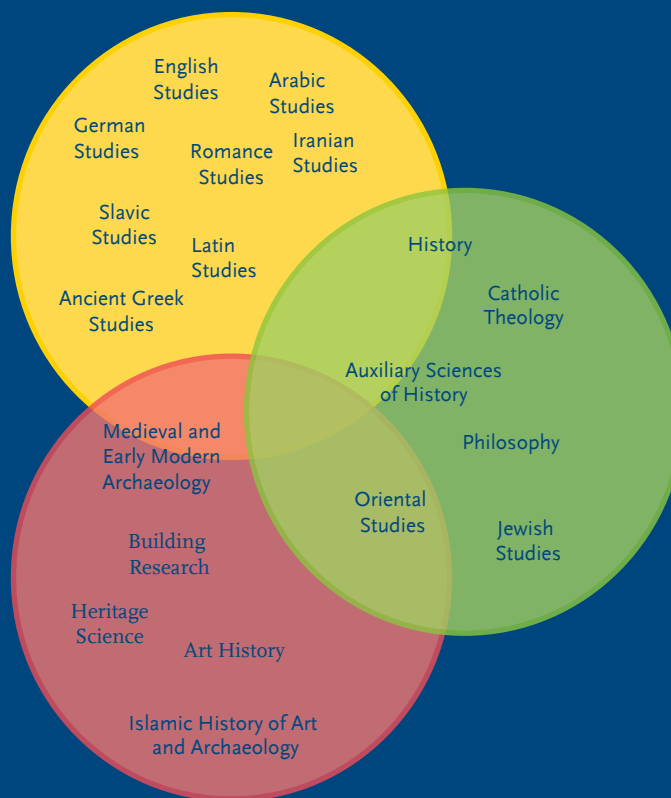

Methodological diversity, interdisciplinary interaction

Jobs in cultural studies increasingly require the skill of developing new perspectives, and therewith new solutions; they require interdisciplinary expertise. With your personal focus, BaGraMS promotes historical, interdisciplinary work, academic self-sufficiency, and the capacity for discursive exchange within the spectrum of fields involved.

Quality features

BaGraMS is embedded in the Bamberg Centre for Medieval Studies, a research group that serves the purpose of interdisciplinary coordination and organization of activities related to the Middle Ages in research, teaching, and further education. It possesses both international and national networks. There is also an opportunity to present your own research, as well as making new international contacts, during regular lecture series, large international conferences, colloquia, and discussion sessions for up-and-coming researchers.

Program

The doctoral students take part in the study program of the Graduate School within the scope of at least 2 SWS (weekly hours) during the semester. Reasonable exceptions (e.g. stay abroad) will be taken care of on an individual level.

The offer includes:

- At least one interdisciplinary research-oriented advanced seminar (“Oberseminar”) per year of study.
- A colloquium, during which the doctoral students may present and discuss their dissertations.
- The ZEMAS lecture series during every summer semester.

