Description

The seminar is open for international students. If required it takes place in English, otherwise in German.

This seminar deals with gender relations in post-school education and the labour market, in theoretical as well as in empirical terms. Special attention will be paid to mechanisms that transform differences between women and men into gender inequalities and their change over time in different welfare state regimes, educational systems, and labour markets. We will discuss important theoretical approaches that offer explanations to these issues as well as recent empirical studies that may shed new light on them.
