BACKGROUND
HINTERGRUND

1. Zielsetzung des Projekts

Zahlreiche Beispiele gescheiterter Demokratien haben erwiesen, dass die Einführung einer demokratischen Verfassung für sich genommen nicht hinreichend ist, die Überlebensfähigkeit einer demokratischen politischen Ordnung zu sichern. Diese muss sich vielmehr in einer Konsolidierungsphase erweisen, die i.d.R. erst mit einem oder noch besser zwei friedlich verlaufenen Regierungswechseln endgültig abgeschlossen ist. Für die erfolgreiche Konsolidierung junger Demokratien sind dabei nicht zuletzt die politischen Orientierungen der Eliten ausschlaggebend, die die Ausgestaltung der Verfassungsinstitutionen beeinflussen und von deren Kooperationsbereitschaft die Funktionstüchtigkeit junger Demokratien in der Praxis abhängt. Gleichzeitig ist es für den Erfolg von Demokratisierungsprozessen aber genauso wichtig, dass auch die Bevölkerung in diesen Prozess eingebunden wird. Aus diesem Grunde ist es erforderlich, neben den politischen Orientierungen der Eliten auch die der Bevölkerung zu untersuchen.

Im vorliegenden Projekt der Transformation Research Initiative (TRI) werden die Wertorientierungen und Einstellungen von Eliten und Bevölkerung in sieben Demokratien untersucht. Neben den jungen Demokratien Chile, Polen, Südafrika, Südkorea und Türkei sind auch die beiden etablierten Demokratien Schweden und Deutschland einbezogen worden, die als Vergleichsmaßstab herangezogen werden können. Deutschland ist dabei insofern ein besonderer Fall, als die Demokratisierung in den neuen Bundesländern ebenfalls erst 1989/90 erfolgte. Die Situation der neuen Bundesländer unterscheidet sich jedoch auf Grund ihres Anschlusses an eine bereits etablierte Demokratie grundlegend von der in den übrigen jungen Demokratien, die den Demokratisierungsprozess alleine bewältigen und dabei auch neue politische Institutionen schaffen mussten.

Die im Projekt berücksichtigten Länder liegen in verschiedenen Weltregionen und gehören verschiedenen Kulturkreisen an. Unter methodologischen Gesichtspunkten handelt es sich bei der Untersuchung um ein sog. „most different systems design“, das sich dazu eignet, allgemeine Hypothesen unter möglichst verschiedenen gesellschaftlichen Randbedingungen zu überprüfen.

Die Projektleitung für das Gesamtprojekt liegt bei Prof. Ursula van Beek von der Stellenbosch University in Südafrika, die zusammen mit einigen Kollegen im Jahr 2000 die Transformation Research Initiative (TRI) ins Leben gerufen hat, um die Qualität junger Demokratien zu untersuchen. Nach erfolgreichem Abschluss der ersten Projektphase mit einer umfangreichen Buchpublikation wird nun in einer zweiten Phase der Fortgang des Konsolidierungsprozesses untersucht. Hierzu wurden in den beteiligten Ländern Elitenbefragungen durchgeführt, deren Ergebnisse mit denen von Bevölkerungsumfragen verglichen werden können. Für die Bevölkerung kann dabei auf die Ergebnisse der jüngsten Welle des World Values Survey (2005/06) zurückgegriffen werden. Der Fragebogen der Elitenbefragung lehnt sich eng an den des World Values Survey an, enthält aber noch eine Reihe zusätzlicher Fragestellungen.

2. Überblick über die Elitenumfrage

In die Elitenumfrage wurden in allen sieben Ländern sowohl Parlamentarier der nationalen Parlamente als auch führende politische Journalisten einbezogen. Es liegt auf der Hand, dass Parlamentarier auf Grund ihrer Funktion als Repräsentanten der Bevölkerung eine für den Erfolg von Demokratisierungsprozessen überaus wichtige, vermutlich sogar die zentrale Elitegruppe darstellen. Sie repräsentieren das Spektrum der relevanten politischen Parteien und ihre Antworten geben damit auch Auskunft über das Ausmaß der Unterstützung für demokratische Werte und Institutionen. Diese Elitegruppe kann zudem am leichtesten über die sieben Länder hinweg verglichen werden.

Die Struktur und die politische Bedeutung der Medienelite sind dagegen nicht so leicht vergleichbar. Auf der anderen Seite ist es jedoch offenkundig, dass die Medien in Demokratisierungsprozessen eine nicht zu unterschätzende Rolle spielen. Denn sie bestimmen, welche politischen Informationen und Interpretationen politischer Vorgänge an die breite Öffentlichkeit gelangen und wirken damit an der politischen Meinungsbildung mit.

Im Rahmen der Elitenumfrage wurden insgesamt 1561 Personen interviewt. In jedem teilnehmenden Land erstreckte sich die Befragung auf Stichprobenbefragungen von je etwa 100 Mitgliedern der nationalen Parlamente und etwa 100 führende politische Journalisten. In Deutschland und Südafrika wurden darüber hinaus auch noch leitende Ministerialbeamte befragt. Die Fallzahlen für Deutschland liegen bei 101 Bundestagsabgeordneten, 109 Mitgliedern der Bundespressekonferenz sowie 82 führende Ministerialbeamte (Staatssekretäre, Abteilungs- und Unterabteilungsleiter).

3. Inhalt des Tabellenbandes

Im vorliegenden Tabellenband sind die Ergebnisse nach verschiedenen Merkmalen aufgeschlüsselt, nach Sektor (Bundestag, Medien, Ministerialbürokratie), Parteimitgliedschaft bzw. Parteipräferenz sowie Altersgruppen. Wegen der niedrigen Fallzahlen für die kleinen Parteien werden nur zwei Parteigruppen unterschieden, Mitte-Links (SPD, Bündnis '90/Grüne, Linke) und Mitte-Rechts (CDU/CSU, FDP). Dabei wurden bei der Prozentuierung nur gültige Werte berücksichtigt. Der Anteil der fehlenden Werte (weiß nicht, verweigert, keine Angabe) ist jeweils ausgewiesen. Damit gibt der Tabellenband einen ersten Überblick über die Befragungsergebnisse. Da es sich um eine Teilstudie eines international vergleichenden Projekts handelt, sind die Tabellen in englischer Sprache ausgewiesen. Der deutsche Fragebogen befindet sich jedoch im Anhang und erlaubt den Nachvollzug der deutschen Frageformulierungen.

Der Tabellenband enthält die Umfrageergebnisse für die deutsche Elitenumfrage, wobei grundsätzlich die Absolutzahlen und Randverteilungen für jede Frage ausgewiesen sind, bei Skalenvorgaben zusätzlich auch noch Mittelwerte. Ein vergleichbar aufgebauter Tabellenband mit den Ergebnissen der Parlamentarierbefragung in allen sieben Ländern kann über die Website des Gesamtprojekts abgerufen werden (www.sun.ac.za/tri)

4. English Summary

TRI was established in 2000 to carry out a comparative study of the transformation to democracy in five countries. The countries, which included South Africa, South Korea, (East) Germany, Poland and Chile, were at the time seen as leaders in democratic transformations in their respective geo-political regions. The project was completed in 2004 and its results were disseminated in a book published in 2005 by Barbara Budrich Publishers in Germany and the United States, and in 2006 by van Schaik Publishers in South Africa. The volume, entitled: Democracy under construction: Patterns from four continents (ed. Ursula J. van Beek) has received positive comments and reviews from internationally recognized experts in the field.

The follow-up study involves a comparison of elites and the general population in an even larger set of seven countries, adding Turkey and Sweden. The population data used for analysis come from the most recent wave of the World Values Survey (2005/06). In all seven countries, data on parliamentary and media elites were collected in 2007. The questionnaire of the elite surveys included many questions that were also asked in the World Values Survey, but also some additional specific questions for elites. It is obvious that parliamentarians are a crucial elite group serving as a link between voters and political institutions. They represent the spectrum of relevant political parties, thus showing the degree of consensus on basic democratic values and institutions among the parties in each of the countries. This is the group that can most readily be compared across the seven countries.

The structure and political make-up of the media elites of the seven countries is instead much more difficult to compare. At the same time, it is obvious that the media are crucial for the dissemination of politically relevant information and can therefore promote or oppose democratic institutions and values. They therefore contribute to shaping the public's perceptions regarding the performance of democracy as compared to the previous non-democratic regime. Because the value orientations and political attitudes of media elites are more difficult to compare without additional information on the different national media systems, the present codebook provides results only for parliamentary elites. This decision was also made in order to increase the readability of the tables.

The present codebook presents the marginals and percentages for all questions included in the German elite survey. Percentages are broken down by sector (Bundestag, media, ministerial bureaucracy), party affiliation and age group. Since the number of respondents was rather small for the minor parties, only two party groups are considered, Center-Left (SPD, Bündnis '90/Grüne, Linke) and Center-Right (CDU/CSU, FDP). The tables show the total number of valid answers for each question. Missing values (refused, no answer) have been disregarded. For questions involving ratings, e.g. degrees of support for certain values or institutions, the tables also provide mean values. The codebook with the results of the comparative survey of parliamentarians in all seven countries can be accessed on the following website: www.sun.ac.za/tri.
