MARTIN WIRTZ, M.A.

Education Programme SS17

Seminar: From Plan to Practice in Public Policy

Room: F21/02.18

Time: Wednesday, 16-18 h

Start: 26-04-2017

Short description:

In this course, we discuss how policies are made – from the setting up of a plan for addressing a problem over its implementation up to its practical evaluation. As we will learn, however, the practice of policy-making is often much different from carrying out a neat and linear plan. In short, we will focus on the whimsical reality of policy-making, where there is ample competition between problem-owners to get their points on the policy agenda, where the freedom to implement policies is limited, where there is often a mismatch between policies and changes in society, and where path-dependence has fortunate and unfortunate effects.

Notes:

The seminar will be taught in English.
