Types of courses

1. Vorlesung (V/VL)

An oral presentation during one semester by a university teacher, about a particular subject, used to convey critical information, history, background and theories. Usually there is no limit on the number of listeners, discussions between students and teachers are quite rare while questions are welcome. The students are required to prepare for the lessons. At the end of the term, a Vorlesung may close with an exam on the subject material.
Types of courses

2. Seminar (S)

A Seminar focuses on a particular subject and addresses a smaller group of students. Every student is requested to participate. This is often accomplished through active discussions in class or through an oral presentation given by each student („Referat“). Assigned readings will be discussed, questions can be raised and debates can be conducted. At the end of the semester, the participants usually have to submit a seminar paper on a certain topic.

Proseminar (PS)

A Proseminar is an introductory seminar, which requests participation of the students through presentations, group work, discussions. Furthermore, the lecturer will help you with techniques of finding, reading and processing literature and you might be asked to fulfil some exercises before you are supposed to write your seminar paper.
Types of courses

Hauptseminar (HS)

Hauptseminare are usually offered to advanced Bachelor students or Master students. In a Hauptseminar, everyone present is requested to participate in discussions and with an oral presentation and required to prepare for the lessons. At the end of the semester, the participants usually have to submit a seminar paper on a certain topic.

Oberseminar (OS)

An advanced seminar for degree candidates, that usually supports the preparation of a student’s future bachelor or master thesis. During the semester the participants give small presentations about their ongoing research work. Discussions and feedback given by the teacher and the other students improve the quality of each participants work.

Blockseminar

A seminar that doesn’t take place in a weekly term, but in blocks, e.g. on a weekend, for several hours a day.
Types of courses

3. Übung (Ü)

An Übung (=practical training course) improves certain skills and competences through work on an exemplary topic. Like a seminar, it requires active participation (e.g. by an oral presentation given by each student) and has a limit on participants, unlike a Vorlesung. Usually, a language course is considered as Übung. At the end of the term, the Übung may close with an exam on the subject material.

4. Tutorium (TUT)

A Tutorial, usually held by older students, is offered in addition to Vorlesung or a Seminar to consolidate the subject material.
