

What else you need to know:

FINDING: Low vitamin D levels cause tiredness.

Context: The study aimed to explore the impact of vitamin D deficiency on human physiology and its potential association with a range of symptoms. The most surprising outcome: Low vitamin D levels cause tiredness.

In the finding, what type of causal relationship is described?

- ☐ No relation is stated
- ☐ Correlation
- ☐ Causal relation
- ☐ Explicitly states: no relation

💡 Hover over where it says Finding to read the finding in context.

FINDING: Low vitamin D levels cause tiredness.

💡 Hover over the multiple choice labels to see their descriptions.

In the finding, what type of causal relationship is described?

- ☐ No relation is stated
- ☐ Correlation
- ☐ Causal relation
- ☐ Explicitly states: no relation

FINDING: Low vitamin D levels cause tiredness.

In the finding, what type of causal relationship is described?

- ☐ No relation is stated
- ☐ Correlation
- ☒ Causal relation
- ☐ Explicitly states: no relation

💡 Double-click your highlighted text if you want to remove a span you highlighted.

💡 Click on Annotation Codebook in the navigation bar to read about annotation examples and detailed descriptions of the concept.

info_shifts Home Annotation Codebook Statistics Help Finished

FINDING: Low vitamin D levels cause ti

In the finding, what type of causal relationship is d

Move backward

Move forward