Credits: 8

This course is designed to help to develop an in-depth understanding of the variety of distinctive approaches to labor protection in the globalizing economy. Besides the discussion of advanced economies, the cases of global periphery will be considered. It is expected that students will understand major differences between labor market policy approaches as well as the major forces prompting globalization of economy and ongoing changes of the labor market. Students attending the course are expected to prepare presentation based on the selected readings and the term research paper.
