

Dear teaching staff, colleagues and students,

The rapidly worsening coronavirus situation has led to numerous discussions about the appropriate course of action for universities in the coming days and weeks. Today, the Bavarian government coalition announced its intention to restrict unvaccinated persons' access to universities beginning sometime later in the week of 22-26 November. As soon as the details of this regulation are known – an announcement is expected in the next few days – we will provide information on the teaching framework for our university in the coming days and weeks. In any case, the University Executive board and the “Teaching During Corona” task force (Taskforce “Lehre in Corona-Zeiten”) will work together to identify possibilities for continuing some in-person teaching in the face of an otherwise unavoidable reduction thereof.

Sincerely,

Ihr Stefan Hörmann
